

Review Exercise: Can for Permission

Change the sentences to include 'can' when something is allowed and 'can't' when it's not allowed, with 'you' for people in general. For example: it's okay to pay later -> you can pay later.

1. It's not okay to smoke here.

2. It's okay to sit on the grass.

3. It's okay to swim here.

4. It's not okay to buy alcohol if you're under eighteen.

5. It's not okay to take photos in the gallery.

6. It's okay to park in the car park.

7. It's okay to take your drinks into the cinema.

8. It's not okay to take food into the theatre.

9. It's not okay to use your phone in the class.

10. It's okay to buy a ticket on the train.

Review Exercise: Can for Permission

1. You can't smoke here.
2. You can sit on the grass.
3. You can swim here.
4. You can't buy alcohol if you're under eighteen.
5. You can't take photos in the gallery.
6. You can park in the car park.
7. You can take your drinks into the cinema.
8. You can't take food into the theatre.
9. You can't use your phone in the class.
10. You can buy a ticket on the train.